

Assignment: Write a paragraph explaining an example of one type of conflict found in Jim the Boy.

Example "Types of Conflict Paragraph" by Mrs. Hayes

One type of conflict found in Jim the Boy is Character vs. Self. An example of this is Jim's day of work with the Uncles in the corn field. Jim plans to impress his uncles by hoeing just as much corn as they can. After triumphing over a difficult clump of grass, he realizes that everyone else is far ahead of him. "He had started a journey he knew he could not finish. He felt a sob gather up in his stomach like a cloud. That Jim felt like crying made him angry." (Earley, p. 16) When Jim can't keep up, he is disappointed in himself, but decides that he will hoe until dinnertime when he can find an excuse to go home. This is just one example of the internal struggle of Character vs. Self.

Assignment: Write a paragraph explaining an example of one type of conflict found in Jim the Boy.

Example "Types of Conflict Paragraph" by Mrs. Hayes

One type of conflict found in Jim the Boy is Character vs. Self. An example of this is Jim's day of work with the Uncles in the corn field. Jim plans to impress his uncles by hoeing just as much corn as they can. After triumphing over a difficult clump of grass, he realizes that everyone else is far ahead of him. "He had started a journey he knew he could not finish. He felt a sob gather up in his stomach like a cloud. That Jim felt like crying made him angry." (Earley, p. 16) When Jim can't keep up, he is disappointed in himself, but decides that he will hoe until dinnertime when he can find an excuse to go home. This is just one example of the internal struggle of Character vs. Self.

Assignment: Write a paragraph explaining an example of one type of conflict found in Jim the Boy.

Example "Types of Conflict Paragraph" by Mrs. Hayes

One type of conflict found in Jim the Boy is Character vs. Self. An example of this is Jim's day of work with the Uncles in the corn field. Jim plans to impress his uncles by hoeing just as much corn as they can. After triumphing over a difficult clump of grass, he realizes that everyone else is far ahead of him. "He had started a journey he knew he could not finish. He felt a sob gather up in his stomach like a cloud. That Jim felt like crying made him angry." (Earley, p. 16) When Jim can't keep up, he is disappointed in himself, but decides that he will hoe until dinnertime when he can find an excuse to go home. This is just one example of the internal struggle of Character vs. Self.